

Final Project: Sales Presentation Mastery Kit

Final Project | Module 4, Lesson 1 |
Company context: Financial services technology

Introduction

In this capstone project, you will build a Sales Presentation Mastery Kit: a portfolio-ready set of materials for selling a core banking platform into the financial services technology sector. The kit consolidates every skill from the course into professional deliverables you can present to employers. You are acting as a sales representative preparing to sell to executives, information technology leaders, and end users at a mid-sized bank.

Learning Objectives

After completing this project, you will be able to:

- Construct a complete and persuasive sales presentation for a real-world scenario.
- Apply objection-handling frameworks to sector-specific objections.
- Develop demo, success-story, expansion, and competitive materials into one cohesive kit.

Scenario

Your company sells a modern, secure core banking platform. Your buyer is a mid-sized bank facing legacy systems, compliance pressure, and slow time to market. Three audiences influence the decision: executives focused on business outcomes, information technology leaders focused on security and integration, and end users focused on daily usability. Your kit must speak to all three. The provided Final Project Case Brief gives you the specific account, Meridian Regional Bank, with concrete baseline data to build from.

Provided Resources

Build your kit on the following provided files, together with the downloadable templates from across the course.

Final Project Case Brief (Meridian Regional Bank): The shared scenario and baseline data for your presentation, success stories, ROI, and battlecards.

Final Project ROI Starter Workbook: A spreadsheet preloaded with the case baseline figures and formulas. Enter your assumptions in the yellow cells to produce your ROI calculation.

Course templates and guides: The Presentation Template Library, Customer Success Story Template and Value Proposition Canvas, Demo Script Template, the objection resources, the ROI Proposal Template, the Battlecard Template Library, Financial Services Presentation Examples, and the Portfolio Presentation Guide.

Deliverables

Your Mastery Kit contains six components

Component	Requirement	Format
1. Sales presentation	A 20-slide deck following a clear problem-to-solution-to-next-step flow	.pptx or .pdf
2. Objection handling playbook	Tested responses to five common financial services objections	.docx
3. Demo resources	Demo scripts tailored to executive, IT, and end-user audiences	.docx

Component	Requirement	Format
4. Customer success story library	Three success stories, each with a quantified result	.docx
5. Expansion tools	A cross-sell and upsell plan with an ROI calculation	.docx and .xlsx
6. Competitive intelligence	Battlecards for two to three competitors	.docx

Instructions

1 Review the Final Project Case Brief and the three buyer audiences before you begin.

2 Build each of the six components, applying the frameworks and templates from the course.

Ensure that every component is accurate, professional, and ready for real-world use.

Combine all components into a single PDF portfolio of at most 40 pages, with a table of contents and a brief introduction explaining your approach.

Tips for Success

Lead every component with the customer outcome, then show the work that produces it.

Keep objection responses grounded in recognized frameworks rather than improvised replies.

Quantify value wherever possible, especially in the success stories and expansion tools.

Treat the kit as a sandbox: there are many valid approaches, so focus on sound application.

Summary

In this project, you have learned that:

The Mastery Kit integrates the full course into one portfolio-ready deliverable.

Strong kits speak to executive, technical, and end-user audiences alike.

Professional, quantified materials demonstrate exactly how you sell.
